

Smart Snacks: State Fundraising Exemptions

As of July 1, 2014, schools that participate in the National School Lunch Program (NSLP) are required to abide by the nutrition standards laid out in the Interim Final Rule on All Foods Sold In School: Smart Snacks. These standards focus on all foods sold on school premises during the school day and are not a part of the NSLP or School Breakfast Program (SBP). This includes a la carte entrees, sides, beverages, items sold in vending machines or school stores, and food focused fundraisers. More information on the standards can be on the USDA Website.

The Smart Snacks standards allow state governments to develop a policy on the number of exemptions (or events) for food fundraisers that do not meet the standards. The chart on the right provides you with the number of events/exemptions a state will allow, with the below information detailing the entirety of a state's policy including duration. SNA extends our thanks to the State Agencies for providing the following information.

The information contained within this report is up to date and factual to the best of our knowledge. As state legislatures take up new bills in 2015, some have introduced legislation to alter the current policy. These states are marked with an asterisk in the chart. SNA will update this document if the proposed changes become state policy.

The following 29 states will have zero exempt fundraisers: AL, AK, AZ, CA, CT, DE, HI, IA, KY, LA, ME, MD, MA, MI, MS, MT, NV, NJ, NH, NY, NC, OH, OR, RI, TX, VA, VT, WA, and WV.

Summary of States with Exemption Policies

As of March 27, 2015

considered a fundraiser.

Georgia: Thirty events per year, per building, not lasting more than three days. State Agency staff will consider additional ones on a case by case basis. Items cannot be sold until 30 minutes after meal time.

Idaho: Ten events per year, per school site. Each fundraiser must not be longer than four consecutive days. School districts will be able to request approval for additional fundraisers from the state Department of Education.

Illinois: Two-year phased out process that is different at the ES/MS and HS level. For HS, in year one, there are 36 exemption days and nine starting in school year 2015-2016 and beyond. For ES/MS, there are nine in year one and zero starting in school year 2015-2016 and beyond.

Indiana: Two events per year per building, and they may not last more than one day.

Kansas: Each school group may have one event per semester, which shall last two days.

Minnesota: LEAs may apply for exemptions over the next few years but aim to phase out completely.

Missouri: Five events per year per school building over one day.

Nebraska: Two events per organization per semester lasting two days.

New Mexico: One event per school, per year.

North Dakota: Three events per building lasting one day, per year.

Oklahoma: 30 events per school site per semester for a period of 14 days each.

Pennsylvania: Allows 10 events for HS, five events for ES and MS and can last one week.

South Carolina: Published on January 21, 2015, schools may have 13 fundraising events lasting three days for the remaining 2014-2015 school year. For SY 2015–16, schools may have up to 30 exempted fundraising events per school, not to exceed 3 days in length. In SY 2016–17, the days per event will be reduced to 2 days (up to 30, not exceeding 2 days each), and in SY 2017–18 and thereafter, the days per event will be reduced to 1 day (up to 30 of 1 day each).

South Dakota: One event per school-sponsored organization per year lasting one day. Non-school sponsored may not hold exempt fundraisers.

Tennessee: 30 events per year, per site.

Utah: Three events per site, per year, which can last no more than five days.

Wisconsin: Two events per student organization, per school year.

Wyoming: Five events per school, which can last up to two weeks.
